I've changed my mind on officiation of interfaith weddings

Rabbi Nancy Rita Myers

July 2014

It's been a long time coming. When I was ordained 17 years ago, I confidently decided that I would only officiate at the weddings for two Jews. I reasoned that my ceremonies were Jewish and that the minimum standard would be Jewish identity, as defined by the Reform movement. I long felt that it was easy to explain and understand. It has worked for me for a number of years.

As time has gone by though, I have found myself feeling sad at all the weddings I cannot officiate. I am appreciative that my Temple Beth David community has been respectful of my position however my remorse has only been increasing. I have asked myself what have I, my synagogue, or the Jewish community gained by my stance? My answer to myself has been disappointing. I confess that having a stance of only officiating for two Jews has not brought together even one Jewish couple nor has it encouraged Jewish home life. Moreover, I see active members of our synagogue where despite one parent not being Jewish, they are raising their children as strongly identifying Jews.

For the sake of fostering Judaism, I have undertaken a period of reflection. Over the past year, I have interviewed a number of rabbis that I respect. I even spent time with a conservative colleague in hopes of being dissuaded of changing my position. Surprisingly, he was understanding and even supportive. I have found myself admiring those rabbis who do interfaith weddings when there is a commitment to Judaism and the raising of Jewish children.

And so after this year, I am ready to say that I have changed my mind. For the sake of encouraging Judaism and helping couples embrace Jewish rites and rituals, I have come to the following decision.

I will do interfaith weddings for our congregants under these conditions: (provided it is a healthy relationship with counseling sessions with me.)

1. Judaism will be the dominant religion of the household.
2. The couple is willing to take the Introduction to Judaism course or something similar.
3. There is a commitment to raising their children solely as Jews.
4. The wedding will be a Jewish one.

There will be times, when the couple isn't ready to make this commitment to Jewish life. I will be respectful of these couples and offer counseling and referrals to clergy who can meet their needs. My new stance, though, will enable me to participate in more weddings of our congregation. These are ones that I believe will help strengthen Judaism and the future of our people.

Blessed are You, Adonai, who created sashon v'simcha (joy and happiness).

Rabbi Nancy Myers

President's Report - July 2014

Aaron Kern, Temple President

As I begin my second term as Temple President, I am happy to report that Temple Beth David remains vibrant and financially stable. Our dedicated Board spends countless hours behind the scenes working to maintain and improve our synagogue and its programming. To that end, I welcome our newest Board members – Adam Bernstein, Neil Kornswiet and Eileen Tobey. Unlike many other synagogues, we have a great synergy between the Board and Clergy. I cannot emphasize enough how important this relationship is to good functioning. It allows us to place all our energies towards addressing actions that strengthen our congregation, that make Temple Beth David a place of greater meaning and greater value.

The new Board has already held the first Board meeting of the year. The kitchen remodeling is well underway. Upgrading of our IT is also in the works along with a number of smaller projects. Membership renewal is in progress and it is our hope that once the IT upgrade is completed, we will be able to offer renewals online - making the process much easier.

The Board remains committed to the goals of increasing membership and youth engagement. We continue to welcome a steady stream of new congregants into our family and see growth in our Chavurahs. We have made good progress in youth programming as well. In addition to having a youth choir, we see many young members joining the adult choir. We have again hired a rabbinical intern to lead the 9th grade and have developed an active youth group. We have youth participating in musical services and recently had a special Disney service to make Shabbat more engaging for your youngsters.

Your support is vital if we are to continue nurturing the future of our Jewish community. If you have not already submitted your membership renewal, I strongly encourage you to do so as soon as possible. If you have the means, consider joining the Circle of Honor.

Together we can keep Temple Beth David a meaningful part of the Jewish community for generations to come.

Aaron Kern
Temple President

July, 2014

By Ruth Kramer, Sisterhood President

The kitchen renovation is underway at last and soon the entire Temple family will be able to enjoy the new setting to its fullest. The ribbon cutting is set for Friday, August 15 and you won't want to miss that. Sisterhood has donated $25,000 to the Kitchen Renovation Fund and in all we have raised over $118,000, slightly short of what is needed to complete the project in its entirety. To those who have donated we are so grateful for your generosity and if you haven't participated, now would be a good time to send in your check to the Temple office designating your contribution to the Kitchen Renovation Fund.

Huge kudos go to Eileen Tobey, Liz Kleinman and Mulu Harrison for clearing out the cabinets in the old kitchen, sorting through the items, and storing what we will need to provide for the needs of the congregation. They have spent hours and lots of energy performing this great mitzvah.

On Sunday, June 8, we enjoyed a lovely luncheon and celebration of Sisterhood Donors. Each Donor is equal to $100 and is earned throughout the year by services from our members as well as cash donations, purchases from the Judaica Shop and serving on the Sisterhood Board and committee activities. This year, 117 ladies attended and were served a delicious lunch, and awarded door prizes and raffle items. Rabbi Myers conducted the installation service for our board and we are on our way into the new Sisterhood year. Thanks to all who helped plan and organize this special event: Mickey Lewin, Sue Leboff, Anne Farber, Robin Baroway, Laura Berman, Renée Dorfman, Jackie Hewitt, Judy Karmon, Hannah Levine, Elaine Netzer, Muriel Marks, Phyllis Postman, Marcela Alban, Debbie Crowley, and Karin Perumean.

Our "Woman of Merit" award was given to Sue LeBoff for all of her service to Sisterhood. She co-chairs the Donor Chair on our Board and is well-deserving of this award for the many dedicated hours she spends keeping track of records and planning the Donor Luncheon.

Our organization is growing and we hope to continue on that trend. In the coming year, our membership dues will remain at $36 per person and we already have several interesting and fun events planned for the coming year. September 21 will be our annual membership event, so you will want to mark your calendars. The Sisterhood Membership form is included in your Temple Member package.

Our next fundraiser will be a bus trip to Pechanga on Tuesday, July 29. Please watch for the sign up page in the Shavua Tov and the Megillah to reserve your seat on the bus.

Our Mazelgram program continues throughout the summer – forms are found in the Megillah and Shavua Tov as well as on the table in the Social Hall. Send your completed list and check to Renée Dorfman as listed on the form.

Summer is a good time to think about goals and objectives for Sisterhood. All of our members are welcome at any of our meetings and functions. We value your participation and dedication. Please watch for announcements in the Shavua Tov and the Megillah for our events and plans. Wishing you good health and lots of happiness!

Temple Member SPOTLIGHT:

Max & Florence Sudakow

~ written by Donna Litvak

July 2014

Even before they met, Max and Florence had a lot of things in common. Both were born in New York. Florence grew up in Long Island. Max was born in Brooklyn, but raised in Miami, Florida and went to college at the University of Miami. Florence also attended college in Florida, although wound up at the University of Florida.

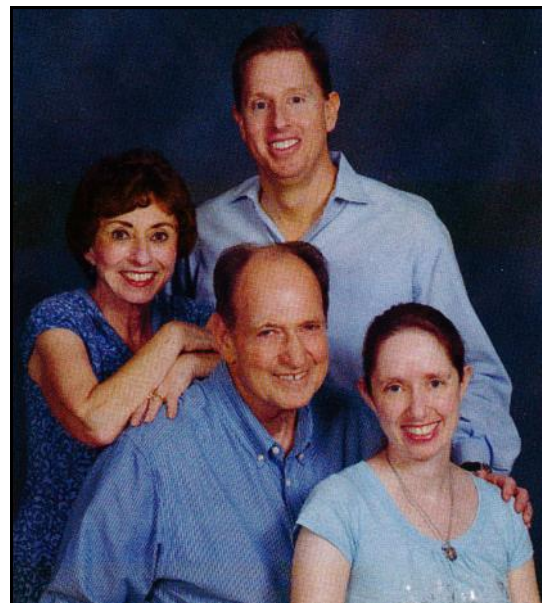

While at their respective institutions of higher learning, both were active members in sororities and fraternities. Their social responsibilities in no way impeded their academic ambitions. Florence had aspired to become an attorney. Discouraged by the high cost of law school tuition, she decided to pursue an alternative career path in special education earning Masters Degrees and related credentials. Meanwhile, Max received an engineering degree. After working in the aerospace industry, Max came out to California and earned an MBA, which led to him managing several businesses: aerospace, traffic light manufacturer, and more. Then he became a consultant and has been doing so ever since.

Their careers have brought them both acclaim and positions on several boards. Among them, Florence became a Resource Specialist in Orange County and was President of the Orange County branch of the California Association of Resource Specialists (CARS). Max served as member and President of the Oceanview School Board.

Speaking of success, the story of how Florence and Max were brought together many years ago also counts as a success story. Like many tales within the Jewish community, a mother was involved. Specifically, while Max was home for the holidays, his mother gave him a list with three names on it. He arranged the list alphabetically and called up the girl at the top of the list – Florence. He never called any other girl on the list. The two went out for two weeks and three days. Then they spent four months writing letters to each other while Max was in Spain. When he was transferred to Scotland, Florence went with him. They got married in a civil service and later had a Jewish ceremony. So Max and Florence have been blessed with two anniversaries, two kids and two grandchildren, and this year will celebrate their 48 year wedding anniversary.

If all of the above wasn't enough to keep these two busy, they devote time to their hobbies as well. Florence likes to bake cookies and race walk. Congregants also marvel at her speaking prowess! Max likes to go to the gym. Both of them like to read.

They are also very active members of Temple Beth David – currently both serve on the Temple Board. Max has been on Temple Beth David's board for thirty-some years and has held nearly every position on it –including President. He now also serves on the Brotherhood's board. Likewise, Florence has held nearly every position in the Sisterhood's board –including President and has been bestowed the Temple's "Woman of Merit" award. She also sings in the Temple choir and has served as the choir's President for the past five years. They were very honored to be recognized last year by the temple for all the hard work they have done.

Members since 1973, Florence likes how the congregation is a very eclectic and welcoming group. Max especially appreciates the community aspect of it. Neither of them had a devoutly Jewish upbringing. (Florence's father was Italian Catholic. Max's family was more culturally than religiously Jewish.) Thus, Temple Beth David became the first congregation Florence became a part of. It was also where they each had their adult B'nei Mitvah. Max's and Florence's devotion to Temple Beth David has been passed on to their children. For the past twenty-five years –since he was a child –their son James has always played the Kol Nidre service. Their daughter is always a dedicated vendor at Temple holiday boutiques with her beautiful handmade table runners and placemats.

With all these accomplishments, you may think Max and Florence would consider slowing down. Yet as they say, "We just keep going!" Where this attitude will take them, they do not know. Florence speculates it will lead them to Australia, an African safari, and cooking classes!

The dedicated duo will surely continue to create many more stories at Temple Beth David...and for all they've done and will continue to do, we are forever grateful! ☆

The Israel Movement for Progressive Judaism, Israel's Reform Judaism, celebrated its golden anniversary at its biennial convention last month. The movement is growing steadily. Currently, they have 47 synagogues and communities including 4 that are Russian speaking. The convention was attended by 1200 rabbis and lay leaders who participated in 40 sessions including workshops, prayer and study sessions.

Israel's Finance Minister, MK Yair Lapid, leader of Yesh Atid, the new political party whose platform was based on reducing the special treatment of the ultra-Orthodox was a keynote speaker. He pointed out that "a year after Yesh Atid's election, we are more committed than ever to the cause of equality among all streams of Judaism inside of Israel, as manifested in the issues of conversion, civil marriage and official government recognition...It is incomprehensible that Israel remains the only Western country where Jewish people are not truly free." He added that "most Israelis are already members of Reform, but they just don't know it."

Justice Minister, MK Tzipi Livni, representing the governing coalition, said in her address that "Israel has not yet decided what it means to be both a Jewish and democratic state. As our country has become increasingly threatened from without, it has become more insular. As a result, Israel is becoming more nationalistic politically and more Orthodox religiously. These developments are weakening the ties between Israel and world Jewry."

Leader of the Opposition Labor Party MK Yitzchak Herzog of the Labor Party stated that he is "fully committed to religious pluralism in Israel and will do anything to promote it. The solution to the 'price tag' phenomenon is right here, in this room: dialogue with and recognition of those who are different than us."

Even MK Hanegbi of Likud, the coalition leading right wing party, emphasized that he is "a full partner with the values of the Reform Movement. We must continue to struggle for freedom of conscience. You, the Reform Movement, are a rock, standing firm against the racism and religious fanaticism that pervades Israel."

From the presence and comments of the Members of the Knesset it is clear that IMPJ is becoming a force in Israeli society and a clear alternative to the Orthodox monopoly on Judaism in Israel. Its future also seems bright because IMPJ operates many nursery schools that expose both the children and their parents to Reform Judaism.

On another topic, the peace process did not make any announced progress by its target date and both sides were quick to blame the other for the failure. The intransigence on both sides shows no signs of abating. The Palestinians seem bent on gaining recognition as a nation by the UN and Israel continues to build on the occupied territory and in East Jerusalem. There seems nothing currently on the horizon that could restart the serious peace talks.
